AYXAcademy

A solution to last week's challenge can be found here.

This week's challenge focuses on a dataset describing mushrooms which has been encoded. In the 23 columns describing each mushroom observed, the values are represented by a single character. Use the Attribute Info table to replace the coded information with the values they represent.

A nice chance to use the dynamic replace. Probably not as performant as transposing, but that time is saved as it respects the order!
